This movie shows the development of the phase (blue), frequency shift (red), and chirp (green) of a self-phase modulating pulse. The pulse is a Gaussian $e^{-(t)^2}$. The phase grows linearly with distance (and thus as time evolves in the movie) to a peak value of 7π at the center of the pulse.